How was the exhibition?

Shoshonka Kaplan, Visitor: “It was very impressive. You know about these things, you know about low level of hearing, and memory and ... And you experience these things all around, tangibly, you know, everything you see, you touch, and you know, really how it feels like. We are one community, one society. We have to accept each other, respect each other. I think everyone is supposed to come here. I would bring my children to come here. Because it is important to feel what the other side is in.
